Community, Conservation, and You.

You inspire us. You make it possible for TLC to continue to create new opportunities for community conservation. Thank you for making 2017 such a wonderful year!

Since TLC's inception 34 years ago, our work has always been rooted within our community while keeping the big picture in mind. We plant hundreds of individual tree saplings with an eye towards the forest they will become.

Thanks to you, more than 1,300 people attended the Grand Opening of the George and Julia Brumley Family Nature Preserve in Orange County in April, 2017. Together we showed that it's possible to safeguard drinking water, protect wildlife habitat, and to connect people with nature on miles of hiking and mountain biking trails all in one beautiful preserve.

Our work is a community effort—no one individual or group could possibly do all that is necessary to see that TLC lands are properly cared for and to help make sure that the next generations get to experience what we have.

Members are the lifeblood of TLC. In Fiscal Year 2017, more than 2,000 of you dedicated time, financial resources, and expertise to our various projects and responsibilities—building trails, removing invasive species, conducting outreach and education programs on the joy and value of conservation for all, and funding new conservation projects—the list could go on and on.

With you, we've protected over 18,000 acres of land across our region since 1983. You have kept us vibrant as we launch into our work for 2018. Make no mistake about it, though, we still need your help and your commitment to our common cause.

This work is permanent. It's a guide and a way forward in uncertain times. Your support makes this possible and ensures that the place we call home will be special forever.

Brumley Nature Preserve

Your support enables TLC to carry out big picture work. We see the Triangle region as an increasingly healthy and vibrant place to live where wild and working lands are protected and everyone has access to open space, clean water, and local food.

FY 2017

4 Farms Permanently Protected

Earthseed Land Cooperative (Durham County), Rand-Bryan Farm (Wake County), Lindley Family Farm (Chatham County), and Bluebird Hill Farm (Chatham County) were permanently protected by conservation easements.

331 Acres of Farmland Protected

Well-managed farms and associated woodlands enhance our communities by producing food and other crops and sustaining local economies.

293 Acres of Those are Considered Prime Farmland

Prime farmland, as defined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is land that has the best combination of physical and chemical characteristics for producing food, feed, forage, fiber, and oilseed crops and is available for these uses. It could be cultivated land, pastureland, forestland, or other land.

FY 2017

Outreach

TLC hosted over 60 public outings, events, and guided hikes across the Triangle (51 of them took place on TLC properties), with activities ranging from foraging and outdoor art classes to invasive species removal and trail building at our preserves. More than 1,300 people attended the grand opening of the George and Julia Brumley Family Nature Preserve, and we estimate that the preserve sees approximately 140 users each day.

Caring for the Land

TLC fulfilled its stewardship responsibilities for more than 7,800 acres of conservation easements and over 5,000 acres of owned land. We hosted environmental education and local refugee farmers at our Irvin Farm Preserve, and constructed more than 10 miles of trails on our nature preserves.

Volunteers

Over 270 volunteers contributed 2,493 volunteer hours for trail building, forest restoration, committee work, and office projects.

Earthseed Easement Project

Safeguarding Clean Water

Land Filters Water

TLC reduces threats to clean water by protecting land along streams, practicing and encouraging land management that keeps soil and pollutants out of streams, leading the development of more effective, collaborative approaches to protecting water, and being an active leader in water quality efforts, including the Upper Neuse Clean Water Initiative (UNCWI), which protects the drinking supply for 500,000 Triangle residents through land conservation. Since 1983 we've protected over 136 miles of streams in our six-county region.

Headwaters of the Eno: Raleigh's Drinking Water

The Earthseed project launched an innovative financing model to our land protection efforts. This 33-acre tract protects 2,150 feet of headwater streams of the Eno River and consequently the water in Falls Lake, the primary drinking water resource for the City of Raleigh.

Safeguarding Clean Water

TLC worked with Durham Water Management to complete a watershed conservation plan for Lake Michie and Little River Reservoir. Durham Water Management committed specific funds to voluntary land conservation efforts in the Upper Neuse. The South Fork project that closed this year protected 2,125 feet of stream that flows to the Little River Reservoir and helps safeguard clean water for residents of both the City of Durham and the City of Raleigh.

"When we spend time in natural spaces we feel grounded, energized, and connected. As parents, conservation is critically important. I love watching my children change as they enter the woods. They become more watchful and curious." — TLC Member Katrina Morgan with her family at Horton Grove Nature Preserve

“Places like Brumley allow us to be kids again, joyful in movement and stillness among a Forest Preserve. I love stopping “out there” to hear bird song, to chat with others, to watch deer kick up the trail before me... to hear the dampening beat of my own heart, to value those who offer the space and allow its terrain to be part of my life’s course. It’s priceless—how can I not contribute?”
